SYNOPSIS

Endodontic treatment can be challenging. Besides the technical difficulties associated with instrumentation and obturation of the complex root canal anatomy, other factors that may complicate treatment and adversely affect the endodontic outcome should also be considered.

This presentation will outline the various factors involved to achieve a successful endodontic outcome, with practical clinical tips and case discussions. The use of contemporary endodontic instruments and obturation materials such as bioceramics will also be discussed.

ABOUT DR CHEW

Dr Chew Huimin is an accredited specialist in Endodontics by SDC and restricts her clinical practice to surgical (endodontic microsurgery) and non-surgical root canal treatment, management of cracked teeth, dental trauma and vital pulp therapy.

Dr Chew was an Associate Consultant at NDCS, where she received numerous awards for rendering quality patient care, such as the Singapore Health Quality Service Awards (Star). She was actively involved in education and helped to organise training workshops for fellow dentists.

Dr Chew is a firm believer in patient education and was one of the speakers for the World Oral Health Day Public Forum 2023. She is currently a Key Opinion Leader for Dentsply Sirona.
